Jones, Skelton & Hochuli Managing Partner Bill Holm spoke with Law360 reporter Adrian Cruz about the firm's new office in Salt Lake City and the team's four new attorneys, Joseph J. Joyce, Jeremy Knight, Bryan J. Stoddard, and Adrienne Moss.

The interview was featured in a Law360 article, Jones Skelton Expands To Utah With Salt Lake City Office, published on January 4. An excerpt from the article is below.

Phoenix-based law firm Jones Skelton & Hochuli PLC said Monday that it opened a four-person office in Salt Lake City, making the Utah capital its second location outside of Arizona.

The decision to open a physical location in Salt Lake City comes less than a year after Jones Skelton first opened a virtual office in Utah, staffed by Phoenix-based attorneys who are licensed in both states. The Salt Lake City team consists of partners Joseph J. Joyce, Jeremy Knight, Bryan J. Stoddard and associate Adrienne Moss.

Jones Skelton, which was founded in 1983, began as an insurance defense firm. It has since added practice areas and industries, although it remains primarily a defense-side firm.

"Over the years, our client base has expanded, as have the needs of our clients," said managing partner William D. Holm. "Salt Lake City is the perfect combination of opportunity and talent, as the firm continues to strategically expand throughout the country, and this new office location helps bolster our resources in the Southwest, while we continue to grow our team of attorneys and expand the services we are able to provide to our clients."
