

As long as jobs, wages and sunny skies continue to bring people and businesses to Arizona, construction and economic development will continue to flourish. Those economic highs also bring claims and litigation.

Jones, Skelton & Hochuli attorneys specialize in all aspects of construction law and seek ways to resolve disputes efficiently and cost-effectively for our clients. We have extensive experience anticipating potential problems and devising legal strategies to protect our clients and their businesses.

Our construction team successfully represents owners, builders, developers, general contractors, subcontractors, architects, engineers and insurers in commercial and residential construction litigation, from multi-million dollar construction defect disputes to contractor bond claims. We help clients solve problems in many areas, including:

- Construction defect litigation
- Dispute resolution
- Risk management
- Insurance coverage analysis
- Construction-related contracts
- Surety and fidelity bond defense and liens

Our talented construction attorneys are leaders in the field and their community, helping to promote best practices in construction litigation and contributing author to the State Bar's Arizona Construction Practice Manual. State and national organizations and associations frequently call on our members to present educational seminars on defense of construction defect and related cases.
