

We know that successfully defending clients against product liability claims requires more than just mastering the legal complexities of the case. Effective defense strategies are shaped by personal knowledge and appreciation of each client's cultural and product design, testing and quality control procedures. A robust defense also requires an in-depth understanding of the technical and scientific principles applicable to our clients' products.

This comprehensive and individualized approach is how our firm has achieved positive results for our clients for more than 30 years and made us one of the top product liability defense firms in the Phoenix area. We have successfully defended hundreds of wrongful death, catastrophic personal injury and other product liability claims brought against manufacturers of a variety of products and distributors in an array of industries. Our extensive experience includes cases involving:

- Medical devices
- Food and beverages
- Industrial farm and other machinery
- Lawn and garden equipment
- Automobiles
- Trucks
- Airplanes
- Aerospace products
- Hardware and tools
- Household products (including appliances)
- Outdoor products (including gas grills)
- Electronics
- Fireworks and other explosives
- Chemicals and other toxic products

The goal for each and every client is to achieve financially favorable and cost-effective resolutions without going to trial. However, when a case must be tried, we have the experience and expertise to do so. Our team—which includes eight attorney members of the American Board of Trial Advocates—has substantial experience trying and winning product liability cases before juries in both state and federal courts.
