Amber Lundgreen joins our Utah office, where she will be working on medical malpractice defense, general civil litigation, insurance and third-party liability coverage, premises liability, and automobile liability defense matters.

She earned her law degree from the University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law, where she served as an Associate Articles Editor for the Utah Law Review. She began her journey toward a J.D. at the University of Baltimore School of Law, prior to transferring to Salt Lake City. Her Undergraduate degree in General Science, Human Development and Family Services is from Utah State University, and she also holds a Paralegal Certificate from Weber State University in Ogden.

Amber worked for several years as a paralegal and law clerk, where she honed her research, trial preparation, and drafting skills. After college, she was a Patient Advocate with Myriad Genetic Laboratories.

In her spare time, Amber enjoys watching professional football. She has visited all five national parks in Utah, and previously volunteered at Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City.
