Joining our firm as an associate in the General Liability Trial Group, Brooke Franco is a talented and ambitious attorney who brings a wealth of diverse experience to the legal field.

During her time at Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, Brooke earned a notable CALI award for legal advocacy writing. She was a member of the Women Lawyers Association, and competed Oral Advocate for the National Appellate Advocacy Team in Moot Court.

Prior to earning her law degree, Brooke excelled in her undergraduate studies at ASU, majoring in Criminal Justice & Criminology. She distinguished herself as a member of the Alpha Phi Sigma Criminal Justice Honor Society and demonstrated versatility by participating in intramural flag football.

With a solid legal foundation, Brooke gained practical experience in various roles, including working as a paralegal and a law clerk for a range of Phoenix firms. Most recently, she served as a defense litigator, handling personal and commercial disputes with precision and skill.

Brooke enjoys reading, hiking, traveling, and attending sporting events in the Valley.
