Luan Gurra is an associate in our firm's esteemed appellate group, as well as our commercial litigation group. He embarked on his legal journey at the University of Tirana College of Law in Albania before earning his Juris Doctor cum laude from the University of Arizona James E. Rogers College of Law in 2021. Throughout his academic career, Luan demonstrated his commitment to legal excellence by contributing to the Arizona Journal of International & Comparative Law, receiving a prestigious CALI award in Conflict of Laws, and serving as a diligent research assistant to two respected professors.

Following his graduation from law school, Luan served as a judicial law clerk with Vice Chief Judge Randall M. Howe at the Arizona Court of Appeals, where he gained firsthand insight into the appellate process and honed his legal research and writing skills. Additionally, he enriched his legal knowledge as a judicial extern for Judge Bruce G. Macdonald at the U.S. District Court for the District of Arizona, researching constitutional law issues.

With his diverse international and comparative law background, coupled with his proven track record of academic success, Luan is poised to make significant contributions to our firm's appellate and commercial litigation practice. He brings a unique perspective and a wealth of knowledge to provide strategic and effective legal representation for our clients.

Outside of work, Luan enjoys soccer, travel, and reading. He is fluent in Albanian.
