Ron Beach is a new partner at JSH, but not new to the practice of law. A strong litigator with over two decades of experience, Ron has managed voluminous cases, mostly involving personal injury, from pre-litigation to jury verdict. He has negotiated five-to-seven figure settlements. His years working in both private practice for a large national defense firm and in-house counsel for a large insurance carrier will benefit the clients he serves here at the firm, as he focuses on auto and general liability, as well as other general litigation matters.

Licensed in 2001, Ron earned his J.D. from the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at ASU, and he has spent his entire legal career in Arizona. He is a member of Toastmasters International. His undergraduate degree in Economics is from the University of Alaska – Anchorage, where he was a NCAA Div. II Scholar Athlete in Men's Basketball.

Outside of the office, Ron enjoys spending time with family and friends, exercise, reading, and watching movies.
